GHS School Internship

by Dorene Nelson

Groton Area High School offers a variety of business classes. One of these classes, School Internship, offers seniors the opportunity to work in various local businesses of their choice. The purpose of this internship is to teach students responsibility by working for someone other than their family. It helps them learn how to work with the public and with customers who might not be all that agreeable at times. Internships could also help students decide on a part-time job while they are in college or maybe even help them choose a future occupation. Brittany Hubbart, a Science and Health Science teacher, organized this experience for the 15 students enrolled in her School Internship class. Local business owners, farmers, and day care providers welcome the students’ help. The Internship class is open only to seniors who have to find their own sponsor for their workplace. All students must be at their chosen place of work during the last period of the school day. The student interns must contact the place they would like to work and have their own personal transportation. The following brief articles are from five of the intern students in her class.

Carter Simon

tor,” he smiled. “My main job is to conduct inventory of the supplies on hand. There are shirts, shoes, golf clubs and bags, and many other items available for the golfers.”

“Doing inventory and keeping track of these items is the most difficult part of my job since it’s easy to get mixed up and have to start all over,” Carter admitted. “My favorite part of working at Lee Park is organizing the club house and keeping it looking neat and appealing.”

“I’m taking dual credit courses as a senior, which allows me to do some classes online,” he explained. “This gives me more time to come here to work.”

Simon interns at Lee Park Golf Course

Carter Simon, the son of Nick and Jamie Simon, Groton, is currently doing his internship at Lee Park Golf Course in Aberdeen. “I enjoy playing golf as well as being on the golf team at Groton Area High School so this just seemed like a good place for me to work,” Carter explained.

“Our golf team qualified for the State tournament where we placed fifth in the State,” Carter said. “I was ranked sixteenth in the State, a nice accomplishment when you figure there were at least one hundred other golfers competing in the State tournament.”

“In addition to being on the golf team in the fall, I also play baseball in the summer,” he said. “Next year I plan to attend Northern State University and major in business in order to learn how to run a business efficiently,”

“Part of my job as an intern here is to clean the display rooms, the storage rooms, garages, and even the refrigerator,”

Weekly Vikings Roundup

By Jordan Wright

As the Minnesota Vikings prepare for the 2025 season, one of the most intriguing position groups to monitor is the defensive secondary. After an offseason filled with roster turnover and strategic additions, the Vikings’ back end looks noticeably different than it did a year ago. With key veterans moving on and a handful of fresh faces stepping in, Minnesota is betting on a revamped unit to help elevate Brian Flores’ aggressive, high-pressure scheme.

Last season, the secondary played a critical role in Flores’ defensive identity — blitz-heavy packages that required smart, disciplined play on the back end. That style won’t change, but the personnel certainly has. With a few familiar names no longer in the mix, this year’s group will lean on a combination of young ascending players, veteran leadership, and potential breakout candidates to hold down the fort. The Vikings aren’t just hoping to replace production — they’re hoping to evolve.

The Vikings’ cornerback group has seen a fair amount of turnover heading into 2025, but the team made it clear they wanted to build around Byron Murphy Jr., re-signing the 27-year-old to a three-year, $54 million deal this offseason. Murphy was the team’s top corner in 2024, often drawing the toughest assignments while also contributing as a leader in the secondary. With a new contract in hand, Murphy is locked in as the CB1 moving forward. Also returning is Mekhi Blackmon, who was in line to potentially be a starter in 2024 before missing the entire season due to injury.

Among the new additions is Isaiah Rodgers, who brings elite speed and intriguing upside. Jeff Okudah, the former No. 3 overall pick, was also signed in free agency. He’s had a rocky start to his NFL career due to injuries and inconsistency, but Minnesota is banking on a change of scenery — and Flores’ coaching — to unlock his potential. Rounding out the additions is Tavierre Thomas, a scrappy slot corner with special teams value. Thomas gives the Vikings flexibility inside and provides experienced depth at a position where injuries tend to stack up quickly.

Veteran corners Shaquill Griffin and Stephon Gilmore, who both played rotational or starting roles last season, remain unsigned free agents. Their potential return hasn’t been ruled out, but for now, the Vikings appear to be moving forward with a younger, faster group.

The Vikings’ safety room enters 2025 anchored by two familiar names — one a franchise legend, the other a rising leader. Harrison Smith is back for what is likely his final NFL season, and while he’s no longer the All-Pro force of his prime, his experience, leadership, and ability to play multiple roles within Brian Flores’ aggressive scheme remain invaluable. The 35-year-old has already etched his name into Vikings history, and fans will no doubt savor every snap of what could be a farewell tour for the future Hall of Famer.

Lining up next to him will be Josh Metellus, whose versatility and football IQ have made him a mainstay in the starting lineup. After breaking out in 2023, Metellus has continued to earn the trust of the coaching staff as a do-it-all defender who can drop deep, play in the box, and cover tight ends. With Bynum gone, Metellus will now take on an even larger role — both on the field and as a vocal leader in the secondary.

Speaking of Camryn Bynum, his departure to the Colts leaves a noticeable void. A steady, reliable presence on the back end, Bynum rarely came off the field and was often the last line of defense. Just as memorable as his play, though, were his post-game celebrations — uniquely choreographed dances that brought life and personality to the Vikings’ locker room. His absence will be felt in more ways than one.

To fill out the depth chart, Minnesota re-signed Theo Jackson, who provides special teams value and rotational depth. Jay Ward, a 2023 draft pick, remains a developmental piece the team hopes can take a step forward in year three. Rounding out the group is Bubba Bolden, a long, rangy safety added in free agency. Bolden is still a bit of an unknown, but he brings intriguing athleticism and could push for a roster spot with a strong camp.

With the secondary wrapped up, we’ve now covered every position group on the Vikings’ roster heading into the 2025 season. Next up: the NFL Draft. Minnesota does not have many draft picks this year, and with needs still lingering at key spots, all eyes are on how Kwesi Adofo-Mensah will navigate one of the most pivotal drafts in recent team history. We’ll break it all down next week. Skol!
