Today in Weather History

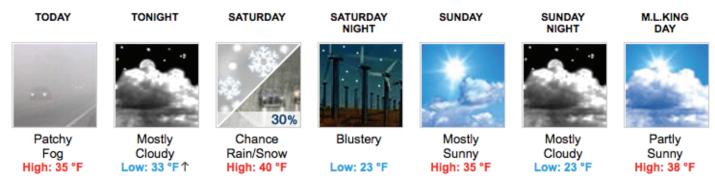

1967: In Minnesota, a fast moving blizzard brought winds in excess of 75 mph. The snowfall was light to moderate with extensive blowing and drifting snow. Visibility was near zero for an extended period of time. Temperatures fell rapidly during the storm and by the morning of the 18th, many records low were set. Many vehicles went into the ditch. Thousands of motorists and school children found shelter wherever they could as travel came to a standstill. A Wheaton man froze to death. In South Dakota, rain followed by a sudden drop in temperatures of nearly 30 degrees in 2 hours resulted in widespread freezing rain and significant icing on roads and trees. Strong winds of 35 to 45 mph with gusts to 75 mph along with the ice halted most travel. The wind and icing also caused the toppling of a 270 foot radio tower near Aberdeen.

1997: An intense Arctic High brought widespread blizzard conditions and dangerous wind chills of 40 to 70 below to central and northeast South Dakota as well as west central Minnesota. One to 3 inches of snow fell on top of the already deep snowpack of 2 to 5 feet. The blizzard winds brought another round of widespread heavy drifting, blocking area roads and highways. Also, many area schools were closed once again to add to their large number of days missed for the winter season. Fortunately, this blizzard as compared to previous blizzards was short-lived and the people were better prepared.

2014: A strong area of surface high pressure building into the region behind an Arctic cold front brought high winds to central and north central South Dakota during the early morning hours of the 16th. Some of the strongest wind gusts include; 69 mph near Whitlocks Bay; 68 mph near Bullhead; 67 mph near Trail City; 66 mph in Foster Bay; 65 mph near Mellette and in Presho; 64 mph near Harrold and in Murdo; and 63 mph in Pierre, Reliance, and Miranda. The strong winds diminished during the late afternoon hours of the 16th. A clipper system passing across the region brought light snowfall and very strong northwest winds gusting in excess of 70 mph at times resulting in blizzard conditions. The highest wind gusts include; 76 mph at the Brown County Landfill; 69 mph in Aberdeen and Cravens Corner; 52 mph near Webster; and 52 mph in Sisseton. Blizzard conditions ended during the late afternoon hours. A no travel advisory was issued in Grant, Codington, Hamlin, and Spink Counties due to poor visibilities. The blizzard led to the cancellation of several area activities and schools and nearly impossible travel conditions.

1990 – Heavy snow fell across Prince Williams Sound and the Susitna Valley of southern Alaska. Valdez was buried under 64.9 inches of snow in less than 2 days including a record 47.5 inches in 24 hours. The heavy snow blocked roads, closed schools and sunk 6 vessels in the Valdez harbor.

Colder air and clouds will continue to funnel northeast South Dakota and western Minnesota today while the rest of the state will see another day of mild conditions. This mild air will push back east this evening and overnight, with readings warming into the 30s. A system will move through Saturday with gusty winds and scattered light rain and snow showers.

"IF YOU REALLY LOVE ME..."

Corporal punishment of children is not considered to be an enlightened way of disciplining children. Actually, it is in direct opposition to the majority of the theories of psychology and changing behavior. But God does in fact include it as part of His program of parenting skills that can lead a child to maturity. Parents who choose not to use this form of discipline do not demonstrate that they possess a "higher degree" of parenting skills or that they love their children more than other parents. In essence, according to God's program of child rearing they do not love their children as much as those who "use a rod."

The words "hate" and "love" in this verse are not to be seen as comparing love and hate in an emotional sense. In other words, to withhold a spanking is not a sign that "I love my child more than you do yours," it could be a sign that "I am willing to sacrifice my child's future well-being because I want him to like me," or "I would rather have the approval of society than God," or "I know of other children who were spanked and they did not end up so good." We must always be cautious about whose approval we are seeking: our child's, man's or God's.

Disciplining children is painful – especially corporal discipline which is clear from this passage of Scripture. But if the discipline is associated with breaking the teachings of God's laws – lying, stealing, being disrespectful of others – then it is appropriate. Children must be informed that "If you lie to me, then you will be spanked" is in keeping with God's laws. Discipline is to bring conformity to God's ways.

Prayer: Father, help us to discipline our children when they disregard Your laws and willingly choose evil. In Jesus' Name, Amen.

Scripture for Today: Proverbs 13:24 Whoever spares the rod hates their children, but the one who loves their children is careful to discipline them.

Man shot by police officer in Beresford expected to live

BERESFORD, S.D. (AP) — Authorities have identified a man shot by a police officer in Beresford. Authorities allege that 21-year-old Christopher Heuer, of Sioux Falls, was suicidal and was shot after he pointed a rifle at the officer Thursday.

Union County Sheriff Dan Limoges says Heuer was taken to a Sioux Falls hospital with injuries that are not considered life-threatening.

Authorities did not identify the officer.

The state Division of Criminal Investigation is looking into the shooting. That is standard procedure for such incidents.

Justices must act fast if gay marriage to be settled in June

MARK SHERMAN, Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time is running short for the Supreme Court to get same-sex marriage on its calendar if the justices want to tackle the issue before their current term ends in late June.

They might have to decide to jump in at their closed-door conference Friday if they want to resolve the legal debate over gay marriage in the next few months.

The justices would hear the case in April, the last month for oral arguments before the next term begins in October.

Friday, January 16, 2015 • Vol. 18 - No. 175 • 10 of 23

Written arguments already would have to be filed on a compressed schedule, though both sides are well versed in the issues after numerous rounds in the lower courts.

Until now, the court has managed both to contribute to a dramatic increase in the number of states that allow same-sex couples to marry and avoid settling the issue for the entire nation. Last week, Florida became the 36th state to issue licenses for same-sex unions.

In October, the justices offered no explanation when they passed up appeals from both sides calling on the court to take up gay marriage. The court also subsequently refused to block court orders in favor of same-sex couples from taking effect while state officials appealed. As a result, the number of states where same-sex couples could wed nearly doubled.

The appeals before the court come from gay and lesbian plaintiffs in Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio and Tennessee. The federal appeals court that oversees those four states upheld their same-sex marriage bans in November, reversing pro-gay rights rulings of federal judges in all four states.

Ten other states also prohibit such unions. In Arkansas, Mississippi, Missouri, South Dakota and Texas, judges have struck down anti-gay marriage laws, but they remain in effect pending appeals. In Missouri, same-sex couples can marry in St. Louis and Kansas City only.

Louisiana is the only other state that has seen its gay marriage ban upheld by a federal judge. There have been no rulings on lawsuits in Alabama, Georgia, Nebraska and North Dakota.

Jury finds woman guilty in 2009 slaying of South Dakota teen

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — A woman was convicted Thursday of killing a potential romantic rival in South Dakota and could face life in prison for a crime authorities say she committed when she was 15-years-old.

A jury in Sioux Falls 20-year-old Maricela Diaz guilty of first-degree murder, kidnapping and arson Thursday in the November 2009 death of 16-year-old Jasmine Guevara. Diaz, a Mexican national, was tried in adult court but cannot be sentenced to death because of her age at the time of the crime.

Prosecutors said Diaz and boyfriend Alexander Salgado lured Guevara to a remote site near Mitchell, stabbed her and left her to die in the trunk of a burning car. An autopsy determined the fire killed Guevara.

Authorities alleged that Diaz, who has a child with Salgado, had become jealous of a developing relationship between Salgado and Guevara.

"Maricela decides to eliminate this competition, permanently," James Davies, Hanson County state's attorney, said during closing arguments. "One of the only friends she has in Mitchell was soon to be gone."

Diaz's attorneys, however, argued that she was herself a victim of Salgado and outlined the sexual and physical abuse that Salgado allegedly inflicted on her, beginning at age 13.

The Argus Leader reported that Chris Nipe, an attorney for Diaz, said his client couldn't have planned Guevara's killing, but Salgado — whom authorities accuse of being a gang member — could.

"Seriously, a 15-year-old told a gang member what to do? A girl that was physically beaten told him what to do?" Nipe said. "You think that the sophisticated plan came from the 15-year-old wearing the Eeyore sweatshirt?"

Salgado is serving a life sentence after pleading guilty in the case. As part of his plea deal, he was to testify against Diaz.. When he took the stand, he said he was Guevara's lone killer.

South Dakota Attorney General Marty Jackley said he would review Salgado's plea deal to determine whether he violated it.

A sentencing hearing for Salgado has not been scheduled.

Salgado is also a Mexican national. He and Diaz are in the U.S. illegally.

Panel approves expansion of dog hunting for mountain lions JAMES NORD, Associated Press KEVIN BURBACH, Associated Press

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — South Dakota hunters will soon be able to use hounds while hunting mountain lions across the state, a change advocates say will give private landowners more options to protect pets and livestock.

The state Game, Fish and Parks Commission voted 5-3 on Thursday to allow the use of hounds to hunt mountain lions outside of the Black Hills on private lands and, in certain cases, on some public lands. Currently, hunters can only use hounds at specific times in Custer State Park, but mountain lion hunting without dogs is open outside the hills year-round.

Friday, January 16, 2015 • Vol. 18 - No. 175 • 13 of 23

The measure to expand hound hunting was brought before the panel as a citizen petition, and it will go into effect 20 days after it's filed with the Secretary of State.

South Dakota Houndsmen Association President Brad Tisdall, who introduced the petition, said the approval is a "huge step nationwide in the hound world."

Reed Vandervoort, a Piedmont resident who has hunted with hounds in Custer State Park and parts of Wyoming, said hounds can help hunters identify the age and sex of a lion after the dogs chases it and traps it in a tree — an important tool for hunters only looking to take the dominant male in an area and leave the young lions.

"Without hounds, the hunters in the Black Hills, if they see a cat in the trees, they might have a few seconds to decide whether to shoot it or not," Vandervoort said.

Vandervoort, a rancher, added that he had to put down three of his calves after they broke their legs fleeing from what he believes were lions.

"You're looking at about $3,000," he said.

The South Dakota Legislature last year rejected a bill to allow dogs in mountain lion hunts outside the hills. Republican Sen. Betty Olson, who sponsored that legislation, told the commission on Wednesday that a teacher in her area has hit a mountain lion with a car.

She said mountain lions make her neighbors wary about letting pets or children out alone.

But expansion opponents say mountain lions are part of the ecosystem and haven't been proven to cause significant problems for South Dakota residents.

South Dakota Game, Fish and Parks Department staff told the commission that there have only been four documented problems with pets or livestock caused by mountain lions since 1999, "but you talk to pretty much any landowner and they've had them wreak havoc," said Travis Theel, a Rapid City resident who hunts mountain lions and supports hunting with hounds.

John Hauge, an opponent of the measure, said hunting with hounds is unsportsmanlike. "It's assassination," he said.

Normal runoff levels expected in Missouri River this year

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — The amount of water flowing into the Missouri River this spring is expected to be close to normal levels.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers says it expects 25.6 million acre feet of water to flow into the Missouri River this year. Typically, the river receives 25.2 million acre feet of water.

Going into the year, the Corps has released enough water to make sure that the full flood control portion of the reservoirs along the river is available.

Corps officials will continue to monitor the mountain snowpack levels and spring rain forecasts. At this point, officials expect to offer full navigation on the river at least through the first half of 2015.

Pierre teen to be eligible for parole in about 6 years

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — The Pierre teenager who was convicted last year of killing a classmate and threatening another will be eligible for parole in almost six years.

Braiden McCahren, 18, was sentenced to 15 years in prison last month after he was found guilty of second-degree murder for the death of 16-year-old Dalton Williams. This week, Sixth Circuit Judge

Friday, January 16, 2015 • Vol. 18 - No. 175 • 14 of 23

John Brown recalculated McCahren's eligibility for parole, moving it up about 2½ years.

In court documents, Brown says he originally intended for McCahren to serve at least 10 years, but because he committed the crime when he was a juvenile, McCahren will be eligible after serving 50 percent of his sentence.

Brown told the prosecuting and defense attorneys that he "erroneously believed" McCahren would have to serve a longer sentence, KCCR-AM reported.

After receiving credit for serving more than 450 days while awaiting trial, McCahren will now be eligible for parole on March 21, 2021, Department of Corrections spokesman Michael Winder said.

Because this is McCahren's first felony offense, defense attorney Michael Butler appealed to Brown that McCahren's two felonies should only count as one as per state law. Brown agreed and issued an order reversing the initial judgment on Tuesday.

SD AG's office investigating officer-involved shooting

BERESFORD, S.D. (AP) — South Dakota Attorney General Marty Jackley says his office is investigating an officer-involved shooting in Beresford.

Authorities say the Beresford Police Department responded to a call for service Thursday afternoon. A 21-year-old Sioux Falls man was shot and injured in the incident. His condition was not immediately available and no other details have been released.

KELO-TV reports that members of the state's Division of Criminal Investigation and police are on the scene.

Survey: economy remains weak in rural parts of 10 states

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A monthly survey of bankers suggests the economy will remain weak in rural parts of 10 Midwestern and Western states because of low grain and oil prices.

The region's overall economic index improved slightly to 50.9 in January from December's neutral score of 50. The index ranges from 0 to 100. Any score above 50 suggests growth while a score below 50 suggests decline.

Creighton University economist Ernie Goss says growth is being restrained in rural areas because of low corn and fuel prices. But bankers say ethanol plants haven't slowed production much.

Despite the concerns, rural businesses have adding some jobs. The January hiring index was 52.8, down from December's 55.2.

Bankers from Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming were surveyed.

SD Gov. Daugaard honors outstanding South Dakota educators

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — Gov. Dennis Daugaard has honored outstanding educators in South Dakota, including national Milken Educator Award winner LeeAnna Rabine from Sioux Falls.

The governor reflected on how teachers impacted his early life in a Thursday speech in the Capitol rotunda where he also congratulated South Dakota Teacher of the Year Allen Hogie, a math teacher from Brandon Valley High School.

Hogie is South Dakota's candidate for the national Teacher of the Year award. The award's nationwide recipient will be announced in Washington in April.

Daugaard used the opportunity to congratulate South Dakota's regional finalists for the Teacher of the Year award: Jennifer Larson, Sanborn Central School District; Lori Wagner, Webster Area School

Annual Governor's Conference on Tourism set in Pierre

PIERRE, S.D. (AP) — About 600 people from across the country are expected to attend the annual Governor's Conference on Tourism in Pierre next week.

South Dakota's Department of Tourism is hosting the event Tuesday through Thursday at the Ramkota Hotel. This year's theme is "Celebrate the Journey."

"We look to not only celebrate the successes and milestone anniversaries of our visitor industry this year, but also to prepare ourselves to stay in line with and ahead of tourism trends," Tourism Secretary Jim Hagen said in a statement. "The expert-led educational sessions that are given at the conference provide the necessary tools to grow our tourism industry."

The conference will feature experts on a variety of topics, including customer service training, social media and market trends, and leadership skills.

Gov. Dennis Daugaard will present annual tourism awards during a banquet the final night of the three-day conference.

Tourism contributes an estimated $2 billion annually to the economy of South Dakota, whose attractions include the Black Hills, Mount Rushmore National Memorial and world-class pheasant hunting. The industry supports nearly 28,000 jobs in the state and accounts for about one-fifth of all tax revenue, according to department statistics.

Dog saves family before dying in South Dakota house fire

GAYVILLE, S.D. (AP) — A dog that died in a house fire in southeastern South Dakota is credited with saving the family in the home.

Officials say the pet's barking woke the seven sleeping family members in the home near Gayville about 5 a.m. Wednesday. The two adults and five children escaped to safety, but the dog died in the fire.

Assistant Fire Chief Lonny Lee says there were no working smoke detectors in the home.

The fire destroyed the two-story house. The cause was not immediately determined.

The Red Cross says it is helping the family members, who are staying with relatives and neighbors.

Belgian authorities say 13 people arrested in Belgium, 2 in France in follow-up to firefight

BRUSSELS (AP) — Belgian authorities say 13 people have been detained in Belgium and two arrested in France in an anti-terror sweep following a firefight in which two suspected terrorists were killed.

Eric Van der Sypt, a Belgian federal magistrate, said Friday that a dozen searches had led to the discovery of four military-style weapons including Kalashnikov assault rifles.

Belgian police on Thursday moved in on a suspected terrorist hideout in the eastern city of Verviers, killing two suspects and wounding and arresting a third.

Sypt says the terrorists' goal was to kill police on the street or in their offices.

Parents of Ohio terror defendant say they saw a change in him; 'I'm at peace with myself'

CINCINNATI (AP) — Christopher Lee Cornell showed little direction in his life, spending hours playing video games in his bedroom in his parents' apartment, rarely going out or working, and voicing distrust of the government and the media. But in recent weeks, his parents say, they noticed a change in him.

They thought it was a change for the better: The 20-year-old suburban Cincinnati man was helping his mother around the house, cooking meals, sitting with his parents to watch movies, and talking about having become a Muslim.

"He said, 'I'm at peace with myself," his father, John Cornell, recalled Thursday — a day after his son was arrested in an FBI sting and charged with plotting to attack the U.S. Capitol with pipe bombs and guns and kill government officials.

The arrest came with U.S. counterterrorism authorities on high alert against homegrown extremists and "lone wolves" — disaffected or disturbed individuals who hold radical beliefs but have no direct connection to a terrorist organization.

The bearded, long-haired Cornell was taken into custody outside a gun range and store west of Cincinnati after, the FBI said, he bought two M-15 semi-automatic rifles and 600 rounds of ammunition as part of a plan to go to Washington.

Huge turnout for pope as he urges Filipinos to reject corruption, end 'scandalous' poverty

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Pope Francis called Friday for authorities to reject the corruption that has plagued this Asian nation for decades and urged them to instead work to end its "scandalous" poverty as he brought his message of social justice to Filipinos who cheered him wildly at every turn.

The enthusiastic reception on Francis' first full day in Asia's largest Catholic nation came despite an unprecedented level of security that prevented the pope from diving into the crowds as he typically likes to do. Rather, Francis waved from the car window or popembile as his motorcade drove through boulevards lined with well-wishers held behind police barricades.

Corruption has wracked the Philippines since the 20-year rule of late dictator Ferdinand Marcos, who along with his shoe-loving wife and cronies were suspected of stealing between $5 billion and $10 billion before being ousted from power in 1986.

The problem has festered amid a culture of impunity among powerful politicians and their allies, weak law enforcement and a notoriously slow justice system. But Benigno Aquino III won the presidency by a wide margin in 2010 on promises to rid the nation of corruption and poverty. Since then, Congress has begun investigating high-level politicians for corruption and three senators have been detained.

In a speech to Aquino and other officials in the presidential palace, Francis said that more than ever, political leaders must be "outstanding for honesty, integrity and commitment to the common good." He said they must hear the cries of the poor and address the "glaring and indeed scandalous social inequalities" in society.

POPE WATCH: Pope Francis surprises street children with visit to a Manila center

Pope Francis is in the Philippines on the first of three full days he is spending in the Catholic stronghold in Asia. Here are some glimpses of his trip as it unfolds:

THE POPE POPS A SURPRISE VISIT

Some 300 children at a Manila center for street kids got the surprise of their lives on Friday when Pope Francis showed up at their door.

The pontiff snuck a visit to the Anak-Tnk Foundation in Manila's Intramuros district after celebrating Mass at the nearby Manila Cathedral.

Supreme Court needs to act soon — possibly Friday — if gay marriage is to be settled by summer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Time is running short for the Supreme Court to get same-sex marriage on its calendar if the justices want to tackle the issue before their current term ends in late June.

They might have to decide to jump in at their closed-door conference Friday if they want to resolve the legal debate over gay marriage in the next few months.

The justices would hear the case in April, the last month for oral arguments before the next term begins in October.

Written arguments already would have to be filed on a compressed schedule, though both sides are well versed in the issues after numerous rounds in the lower courts.

Until now, the court has managed both to contribute to a dramatic increase in the number of states that allow same-sex couples to marry and avoid settling the issue for the entire nation. Last week, Florida became the 36th state to issue licenses for same-sex unions.

State of Union: Rethinking the big speech that isn't so big anymore; less drama, more noise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State of the Union just isn't what it used to be.

Sure, the pageantry and theatrics of the annual presidential address will all be there. The stem-winder of a speech from President Barack Obama. The standing ovations from his supporters, and strategic smirks and scowls from his opponents. The wall-to-wall media coverage and cable news countdown clocks.

Friday, January 16, 2015 • Vol. 18 - No. 175 • 18 of 23

But viewership is falling, with 20 million fewer people watching last year's State of the Union compared to Bill Clinton's address at the same point in his presidency. Congress rarely follows through on the policy proposals the president unveils. And this year, the battle lines between Obama and the new Republican-led Congress will have already been set before the president arrives on Capitol Hill for the annual address to a joint session of Congress and a television audience of millions.

The dwindling impact of the big speech has sent the White House searching for new ways to break through. It's now thinking of the State of the Union as an "organizing principle" rather than a single, communal event.

So instead of waiting until Tuesday night's address to announce new initiatives, Obama has spent the past two weeks unveiling them in a series of speeches around the country and social media posts. The White House is aiming to get people who don't tune in to the 9 p.m. EST address to catch up with at least parts of it later. And the president's first big post-speech interview will go not to a big newspaper or TV network but to YouTube, in hopes of capturing the attention of some of those less likely to have watched the actual speech.

Russian opposition figure Navalny says he has been taken in for questioning by 12 police

MOSCOW (AP) — Anti-corruption campaigner and leading Russian opposition figure Alexei Navalny was taken in for questioning on Friday, escorted by a dozen police who he said had intercepted him outside his Moscow apartment building.

Navalny, a vehement foe of President Vladimir Putin, was convicted in late December of fraud and given a 3½-year suspended sentence. The court said that until his appeals are exhausted he must remain under house arrest.

He has been allowed to leave his home in recent days, but has been followed by law enforcement officers posted outside his door.

Navalny posted on Twitter that he was met Friday morning by 12 police officers and taken to the federal Investigative Committee, which had summoned him for questioning about his anti-corruption activities.

He said the whole thing was like a movie: "Three police are with me in the car and three in plainclothes in the car next to us. Too bad I didn't bring my dark glasses."

Oklahoma carries out lethal injection; inmate shows no obvious signs of distress

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — In its first lethal injection since a botched one last spring, Oklahoma executed a convicted killer with a three-drug method also used by Florida for a punishment the same night.

In an execution Thursday that lasted 18 minutes, Oklahoma inmate Charles Frederick Warner showed no physical signs of distress after the lethal drugs were administered, although he did say, "My body is on fire." He was declared dead at 7:28 p.m. CST.

Warner, 47, was put to death for killing an infant in 1997. He was originally scheduled to be executed in April on the same night as Clayton Lockett, who began writhing on the gurney, moaning and trying to lift his head after he'd been declared unconscious. That prompted state officials to impose a moratorium on executions in Oklahoma until an investigation was completed into what went wrong.

Friday, January 16, 2015 • Vol. 18 - No. 175 • 19 of 23

Wearing gray prison scrubs and covered with a sheet up to his waist, Warner, bald and clean shaven, was strapped to a gurney with intravenous lines in both arms.

When asked before the execution began if he had any final words, Warner responded: "Before I give my final statement, I'll tell you they poked me five times. It hurt. It feels like acid."

Native Hawaiians debate best path to sovereignty — tribal status or outright independence

WAIMANOLO, Hawaii (AP) — Pookela Rodenhurst lives as if he's back in the Hawaiian Kingdom. He hunts for sea turtles, watching for the game warden behind his back. He forages for herbs in the Koolau Mountains. He drives without a license because he won't agree to abide by state laws.

Rodenhurst and other Hawaiian nationalists who long for a return to the days when the islands were ruled by royal families are increasingly dominating the debate about the future of the islands' indigenous people. And their insistence on someday restoring the kingdom threatens to overshadow a federal proposal that could, after years of lobbying by advocates, offer Native Hawaiians some of the same privileges that have long been available to other native groups.

Many years before Hawaii became a tourist destination, the Hawaiian Kingdom ruled over the islands and held treaties with dozens of countries. It was overthrown by a group of American businessmen 122 years ago, on Jan. 17, 1893, and annexed five years later.

Now the U.S. government is considering extending to Native Hawaiians the same type of tribal recognition that many American Indian tribes have had for generations, potentially giving special status to more than 200 programs and securing lots of federal money, including nearly $14 million for health care, $32 million for education and $10 million for housing. The issue has reawakened distrust between moderates who generally support the idea and absolutists who want to see the kingdom rebuilt, even if it means chasing an all-but-unattainable goal — dissolving the state of Hawaii.

Rodenhurst insists the American government is "belligerently occupying Hawaii."

If you think you will have difficulty obtaining any of the documents please contact us. If you find that you simply can't produce one of the required documents, we can work with you in those situations. Again, please use the contact information for the Driver Licensing Program if you have any questions or concerns.

That means once you have your federally compliant driver license or identification card in hand, you will only need that card and two documents to show your current address the next time you renew your driver license or identification card. If your driver license or identification card has a gold star in the upper right corner, then it is federally compliant.

Our staff is committed to providing the best service possible, so don't hesitate to contact us by telephone or email. We will help you in any way we can.

Federal regulations require anyone applying for a new, renewal, or duplicate driver license or identification card to provide the documents listed below and on page 2 (photo copies are not acceptable):
