Groton Area shuts down Roncalli, 3-0 Groton Area's volleyball team posted an impressive 3-0 win over Aberdeen Roncalli in a key Northeast Conference match and in a key match that propelled the TIgers to the top of the region in the seeding. "We had a good week of practice and we also had some different workouts we've been doing to work on our quickness," said Coach Chelsea Hanson. "We lost Taylor (Holm) this week to a knee injury so we really challenged the girls to adapt, not only physically, but more mentally so we could still compete."

Groton Area took command of the match from the very first serve, taking a 2-0 lead in the first game and never trailed to win the first game, 25-16. "There was something in the gym this week," Hanson said. "I'm not sure what got it going but the girls really bought in to working hard and making themselves better."

The second game was as exciting as it could get. Groton held the 3-0 lead. The Cavaliers came back to tie the game at three. Then there were four lead changes and the game was tied three more times before Groton recaptured the lead, scoring seven straight points to take a 12-7 lead. The Tigers had a 21-16 lead before Roncalli rallied to tie the game at 21. Groton went up by two, 24-22, but the Cavaliers rallied and ended up with a 26-25 lead. Groton tied the game at 26 and scored the last two points for the 28-26 win.

"This match was the best we've probably played defensively and offensively," Hanson said. "We didn't make a lot of mistakes. We needed this win for some confidence in a new rotation. We're unsure how long Taylor will be out for so we're going to keep working at getting better as a team and try and fill the presence she provided. It was a great night for us!"

The big second game win took the wind out of the sails of Roncalli and Groton Area dominated the third game, jumping out to a 4-0 lead and went up, 12-1, and easily went on to win the third game, 25-16.

The match was carried live on GDILIVE.COM, sponsored by the Aberdeen Chrysler Center. Gia Gengerke had 14 kills (29-40) and two solo and one assisted block on the night. Miranda Hanson was 107 of 110 in sets with 27 assists and was 20 of 22 in serves with three ace serves. Jennie Doeden had eight kills (30-33), two blocks and three ace serves (16-16). Nicole Marzahn had four kills, one solo and one assisted block. Jessica Bjerke had two kills and Eliza Wanner had two kills and 19 digs. Payton Maine had 27 digs as the Tigers had 80 as a team.

Groton Area is now 8-2 on the season and will travel to Henry on Monday to take on Florence/Henry. Roncalli falls to 10-5.

North Central Farmers Elevator and Wheat Growers Members Approve Unification

Carol McFarland-Kutter, D.C. 1205 N 1st St., Groton 397-8204

(SEPT. 28, 2017; Ipswich & Aberdeen, SD) – The member-owners of North Central Farmers Elevator and Wheat Growers have each voted to approve the unification of the two cooperatives.

The North Central Farmers Elevator members voted for the proposed unification 911-657. The Wheat Growers members also voted for the proposed unification, 1598-954. With this vote, the new cooperative is expected to begin operations effective Feb. 1, 2018. Until the effective date, each cooperative will continue to operate independently from the other.

"We listened to our members and it was based on their comments that we brought this to a vote of the membership," said Rick Osterday, North Central Farmers Elevator Board President. "We're pleased that they concluded that the unification of both cooperatives can bring additional value to members and ensure the long-term relevance and viability of a unified cooperative. We want to thank them for their support and participation in this important part of cooperative governance."

"This is a merger of two financially strong, legacy-rich cooperatives," said Wheat Growers Board President Hal Clemensen. "Our mission now is to seize this opportunity to build a new, even stronger cooperative better able to serve our member-owners. As we go forward, we will create new efficiencies, take advantage of new technologies and continue to build a strong employee team – all in order to create more value for our members."

The member voting period began Aug. 29 and followed a series of member information meetings that were held throughout the region beginning Aug. 21. Members cast their ballots through Sept. 28. All ballots submitted were verified by Eide Bailly, the third-party audit firm administering the vote.

The focus of the two cooperatives now turns to planning integration efforts, including developing a name for the new cooperative.

City gets 2 Automated External Defibrillators

According to the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute, "An automated external defibrillator (AED) is a portable device that checks the heart rhythm and can send an electric shock to the heart to try to restore a normal rhythm. AEDs are used to treat sudden cardiac arrest (SCA).

"SCA is a condition in which the heart suddenly and unexpectedly stops beating. When this happens, blood stops flowing to the brain and other vital organs.

"SCA usually causes death if it's not treated within minutes. In fact, each minute of SCA leads to a 10 percent reduction in survival. Using an AED on a person who is having SCA may save the person's life.

"Ninety-five percent of people who have SCA die from it-most within minutes. Rapid treatment of SCA with an AED can be lifesaving."

The American Red Cross supports the position that improved training and access to AEDs could save 50,000 lives each year. The Red Cross believes that all Americans should be within four minutes of an AED and someone Chief Stacy Mayou are holding the trained to use it.

Sudden cardiac arrest is one of the leading causes of death in the U.S. Over 350,000 people will suffer from sudden cardiac arrest this year. It can happen to anyone, anytime, anywhere and at any age. An AED is the only effective treatment for restoring a regular heart rhythm during sudden cardiac arrest and is an easy to operate tool for someone with no Hope Block said, "What an awesome medical background.

THINKING ABOUT HEALTH Medicaid Still a Target of Healthcare Reform

By Trudy Lieberman, Rural Health News Service

What's going to happen to healthcare now that Senate Republicans have failed to pass their bill, which would have replaced much of the Affordable Care Act? In particular, what's going to happen to Medicaid, the government's largest insurance program, which covers 74 million Americans? This is a good time to clarify what was at stake and may still be up for grabs in the months to come.

Despite its importance to so many people, Medicaid has always been the health system's stepchild. Many doctors and dentists have avoided taking Medicaid patients saying the program didn't pay enough. Until recently, editors haven't been keen to feature stories about Medicaid believing that their audience was not interested in reading about people most likely to be on the program – the poor, the disabled, kids, and seniors who needed it to pay for their nursing home care.

Suddenly, media stories about cutting Medicaid and the loss of coverage to millions became news. "In the course of the debate, it's become clear that Medicaid has tremendous public support. There has been much more focus in this debate than I've seen in any health policy debate," said Shannon Buckingham, vice president for communications at the Center for Budget and Policy Priorities, a Washington D.C., think tank.

So what is this program that affects so many and will undoubtedly surface again either later this year or next as a political football?

It was created in 1965 under the Johnson administration at the same time Medicare was passed. Unlike Medicare, though, which is a social insurance entitlement to which people contribute throughout their working lives, Medicaid is a welfare program. Those applying for coverage must meet strict asset and income tests, which mean they can't own very much and they can't earn a lot of money. Everyone who qualifies is guaranteed coverage.

The benefit package that all states must offer is generous, covering many services, including nursing home care and transportation to medical appointments. It pays for care given at rural health clinics and federally qualified health clinics. States can provide optional benefits such as prescription drugs, respiratory care, dental services, physical and speech therapy. Many states do.

States and the federal government share in the cost, and that's where the fight in Congress comes in. As medical costs have risen - with few controls on how high they can go - states have found that Medicaid is consuming larger shares of their annual budgets, often crowding out other needs like fixing roads. The federal government continues to pay more too.

One solution for this dilemma is to change the way Medicaid is financed - from a statefederal matching arrangement into what's called a block grant. Under a block grant, the federal government will give a set amount of money to the states. It's a way reduce its healthcare expenditures while shifting more of the burden to the states to cover their residents who depend on Medicaid.

Conservatives have argued for years that giving the states a lump sum would mean they could manage their programs as they saw fit. That's why during debates on Medicaid you hear phrases like "more flexibility" and "greater freedom." But others argue that flexibility and freedom come at a cost. It could allow states to offer fewer benefits and impose restrictions that would make it harder for people to get care.

The Graham-Cassidy bill that was the Senate's last attempt at remodeling the Affordable Care Act called for block grants and eliminated the ACA's Medicaid expansion program that had provided healthcare to those with incomes between the poverty level and 138 percent of the poverty level. This year that's about $16,600 for a single person and about $34,000 for a family of four. The expansion had brought some 12 million people onto the program.

The Medicaid debate is far from over and is shifting to the states. Several have applied for waivers from the federal government to allow them more flexibility. For example, a state might ask for permission to enroll Medicaid recipients in private insurance plans as Arkansas has done. While a private market solution might sound good, it could mean that people on Medicaid would have to pay higher deductibles and other cost sharing. Indiana has a waiver that requires recipients to make small monthly payments and maintain a savings account mostly funded by the state to pay for some of their care. People who don't make their payments may be locked out of coverage for a time. Some states like Arizona and Kentucky are eyeing work requirements. Most Medicaid recipients, however, are already working. These potential changes raise important questions this last debate didn't answer. Who should get coverage? Should we control rising medical costs by reducing healthcare for those who can least afford it?

Lots of activity on SD37 Work has been moving along at a fast rate on SD37. The concrete work for the sidewalk and curb and gutter is nearing completion. Asphalt will be laid down on more of SD37 next week. Currently, there is only one crossing between the west side of Groton and the east side of Groton and that is at Third Avenue. Once the Fourth Avenue work is completed, that intersection will be opened with the rest of the intersections being closed.

Phase 6 of the project is in progress which is from Railroad Avenue to Aspen Avenue. During the daytime hours, traffic has been detoured to Aspen Avenue.

Muth Electric has nearly all of the conduit in place for the street liahting part of the project. The seeding of the boulevards and filling in of dirt will begin next week.

Dixon property given tax reduction

The late Jake Dixon property on Main Street will have its special assessment reduced in half. In a second attempt by Dick Kolker, attorney for the family, the county and the city have agreed to reduce the county taxes and city special assessments by half. This will result in a $7,000 reduction by the county and a $6,000 reduction by the city.

There are 40 stumps around Groton that will be ground out soon. One-call locates for the boulevard stumps have been done.

A $25,000 tree project for the cemetery has been completed. A donor made the contribution for the project. The new trees have been planted on the east side and some on the south side.

City Supervisor Terry Herron also reported that the curb on Main Street by the Karma Salon, as well as two places out at the Olson Development will be repaired this fall. The striping on Main Street will be done in the spring and Herron said that is something the city will be able to do itself with the use of the school's striper.

The City of Groton will be an all LED community. Electric Superintendent Shawn Lambertz reported that all of the lights in town have been converted to LED lighting. In addition, the lights on US12 and SD37 will also be LED. Councilman David Blackmun said, "It's amazing of the difference in lighting," and Councilman Jay Peterson added, "It's striking."

City Waste Water Superintendent Dwight Zerr reported on the jetting of the sewer mains that was recently completed. Councilman Karyn Babcock also mentioned that the issue of people flushing towelettes down the toilet should be stopped. She aid the flushing of the towelettes is causing the city money with sewer backups and pump repairs.

Twelve wood chairs at City Hall were declared surplus at $5 each. Paul Kosel reported that the city is applying for a FEMA Mitigation grant for a generator at the Aspen Lift Station. It is a 75:25 grant which will cost the city around $6,000 for the project. Some of the cost can also include in-kind contribution where the city's time involved in the project can be used towards the match.

Lien Transportation was working on the Fourth Avenue part of the project. Part of the road had to be removed to lay new storm sewer pipe. The final layer of asphalt is being laid down in this photo. The will be doing more asphalt work on SD37 next week. (Photo by Paul Kosel)

Weekly Vikings Roundup By Jordan Wright

The Minnesota Vikings took on the Detroit Lions this past Sunday at U.S. Bank Stadium. The Vikings did not give their best effort, and the Lions took advantage of Minnesota's sloppy play, leaving Minnesota with a 14-7 win. Unfortunately for the Vikings, they lost more than just the game...

In the third quarter, with the Vikings moving the ball well, rookie running back Dalvin Cook was scampering up the middle to pick up a first down. He attempted to juke a Lions defender, when his knee simply gave out and he crumpled to the ground, losing the ball in the process. Cook was helped off the field and taken immediately to the training room. When he appeared later that day, he was using crutches and had a noticeable limp. It was initially feared, and subsequently diagnosed as a torn ACL, which will end his promising rookie season. We have seen running backs come back from this type of injury before, so it's possible Cook comes back next season and is the same, dynamic player he was before the injury. Only time will tell.

For now, though, the Vikings will turn to Latavius Murray and Jerick McKinnon to run the ball. The team thought highly enough of Murray to sign him to a big contract in free agency, which is a good sign. However, Murray had offseason surgery on his ankle, and he admitted on Sunday that he is still not 100%, but would be up for taking as many carries as the Vikings want to give him. McKinnon will also get some carries, and should be the team's third-down, pass catching RB. Both Murray and McKinnon are good players, but neither of them will be able to fill Cook's shoes in the backfield.

After coming out of the gates last week against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Case Keenum fell back to reality this week against the Lions. Keenum completed 16 of 30 passes for 219 yards, no touchdowns and no interceptions. The Vikings offensive line did pretty well against the Lions stout defense, only allowing two sacks and helping Dalvin Cook rush for 5.1 yards per attempt (13 carries, 66 yards). The Vikings offense also uncharacteristically lost three fumbles (Cook, Adam Thielen, Jerick McKinnon). Detroit is a good team, but the Vikings are better and could have won. Instead, they beat themselves with the turnovers and ineffective guarterback play.

The Viking's looked inept on offense, but were much better on defense. Lions QB Matthew Stafford was under constant pressure on Sunday, with the Vikings defense sacking him six times to go along with nine other quarterback hits. The secondary did their jobs for the most part and only gave up a couple big plays that were the result of miscommunication. Three Vikings players were able to get their hands on game-changing interceptions, but none were able to haul them in. At the end of the day, the Vikings defense held Detroit to 14 points, which should have been more than enough. The Minnesota Vikings will have an extra day to prepare for the Chicago Bears, since the two teams will face off on Monday Night Football. The game will be in Chicago, and will start at 7:30 p.m. Central Time on October 9. There is a chance the Vikings will have Sam Bradford back for this game, although there are rumblings that the Vikings would prefer to let Bradford sit an extra week, since the field conditions at Soldier Field are inadequate at best.
