Shaun Wanner was chipping away at the ice that had accumulated on the roof. He said that he has never seen this much snow around his house and his biggest fear is water getting into his basement as his backyard is full of snow.

Tree pulls service from house

A tree fell down behind the house of Brad and Chelsey Sheridan, 207 N. 4th St., in Groton, resulting in some minor damage. The tree fell on the service line, ripping the meter socket from the house. The house still had power, but the City of Groton Electric Dept. and Locke Electric restored the line in less than half an hour.

March 13-14 Blizzard in Review

Bombogenesis is a term that you do not hear a lot about, especially here in the upper midwest. What is a Bombogenesis? It's when a low pressure system has a drop in barometric pressure over a short period of time. The dramatic drop can cause what we just experienced this past week with high wind, snow and floods.

A low pressure system of rare intensity tracked across the Great Plains on Wednesday, March 13th and Thursday, March 14th 2019. Significant weather hazards began across South Dakota during the morning of the 13th as a broad arc of heavy precipitation moved from south to north. A rain/snow line was in place through much of the day, generally along the western side of the James Valley. Heavy rain of generally 1 to 2" as well as freezing rain in some cases affected those to the east of this line, and heavy snow of generally 6 to 12" fell to the west of it. Strong and widespread north wind gusts of 45 to 70 mph developed during the evening of the 13th and lasted through much of the day on the 14th. Temperatures cooled during this time, and widespread blizzard conditions were observed across our forecast area. Severe snow drifts of up to 12 feet or higher were left in the storm's wake by the 15th across portions of central South Dakota. Impacts included minor flooding, countless vehicles in ditches, widespread road closures for extended periods (including portions of I-90), as well as power outages. This event capped off an incredibly snowy February and start to March, further setting the stage for potential springtime flooding.

A crew from Northern Electric braved the blizzard conditions yesterday afternoon to replace a broken pole north of Groton. According to Groton Police Officer Damian Bahr, Bob Swisher came with his tractor to move snow so they could do their work. This was located at 124th and SD37. (Photo by Damian Bahr)

This is the view of Third Avenue West in Groton as the road is closed to through traffic due to the snow drifts. The same is true for Fifth Avenue West and 16th Avenue. (Photo by Paul Kosel)

Journey to America the Great

Editor's Note: Yankton, S.D., journalist Brian Hunhoff gave the keynote speech last Friday at a Sioux Falls naturalization ceremony for new citizens from 40 different countries. Following is an edited version of his remarks.

By Brian Hunhoff, Yankton County Observer

It's one of the greatest honors of my life to be here with the 237 men and women completing the journey to this special day. I'm one of the lucky ones. I was born on a farm 60 miles from here. That means my citizenship came easy. It was a birthright.

The same is true of most U.S. citizens. Just six percent are naturalized. You took the path less traveled and became Americans the hard way.

It's not an easy process. Not a fast process. Most of you worked and waited years for this day. You became Americans through sacrifice, determination and your vision of a better life. As such, you're unlikely to take this blessing of citizenship lightly.

And it is a blessing. America means equal opportunity and pursuit of happiness. America means rich and poor have the same rights. We support truth, justice and the rule of law. And no one in America – not even the President – is above that law.

America's greatest achievements are not skyscrapers or jets. Our strength lies in our compassion, in our communities, where our people care for one another; where neighbors help neighbors – and strangers – in times of need.

America is big cities and small towns; cornfields and main streets; veterans and nurses; teachers and truck drivers; factory workers, farmers and firefighters.

America is working one place 40 years or changing jobs every year if you want to. America is open government and voting and running for office if you want to.

America is a nation of immigrants, multi-cultural by design. We should be a celebration of diversity. America should mean respect and dignity for all people. America is red, white and blue. We're also black, white and brown.

America is Democrats and Republicans and Independents. America is any religion or no religion – the right to pray freely or not pray at all.

America means liberty to be who we want to be and fighting for that freedom if need be. It means standing up to bullies who disguise bigotry and cruelty as patriotism.

America is a place we rise above that which separates us to build a stronger nation on that which unites us.

America is also hard to please. We like to complain. Polls show many think our country is on the wrong track. We sometimes have to stop and look around to remember we would not want to live anywhere else.

Our leaders in America disappoint us at times. I speak out when that happens, but I never lose hope and pride in our country. We're not defined by a single leader. We're bigger and better than one person or moment in time.

We can bring our polarized country closer together by rediscovering shared values like freedom and equality. Those principles are more important than partisan beliefs that divide us.

I told a friend I was writing a speech called 'Journey to America the Great.' He laughed and said, "I'd call it 'America the Corrupt' or 'America the Greedy'."

Well, America is not perfect. But America is great. And we're better than we were. Slavery was one of this country's original sins. Horrible treatment of American Indians was another. We moved forward and became better by admitting our mistakes and not forgetting those shameful chapters in American history.

As William Faulkner wrote, "The past is not dead. It isn't even past."

My cynical friend's father was a WWII veteran, so he knows America is capable of greatness. Next year, we celebrate the 100th anniversary of women getting the right to vote in this country – Aug. 18, 1920. That was another time we became better than we were. Just imagine how much the combined intelligence of our nation's voters increased that day!

Neil Armstrong's 1969 walk on the moon was another great moment ... Rosa Parks refusing to give a white man her seat on an Alabama bus in 1955. That isolated moment of courage has been making a difference ever since.

America has a great big heart and a strong heartbeat. We still inspire democracy and human rights in other countries. We still enjoy the liberty to make our own American dreams come true.

Congratulations on becoming United States citizens. Thank you for taking the journey to this day. It's a supreme achievement. We're proud of you.

I hope all 237 of you will be active citizens. We need people with your perseverance and fresh perspectives to help solve America's problems. We need your courage and commitment to help us keep our flame of freedom burning bright.

God bless you and God bless America the beautiful, which has been great since 1776.

Our country became even greater and more beautiful today, because of you.

growth and improve the quality of life of rural residents.

"If South Dakota wishes to broaden its economic base and participate in the scientific and engineering developments that propel many other states, it must consciously promote investments in technology," McNab said. Those investments will be critical to allowing rural residents to compete with their urban counterparts and stem out-migration from the most remote regions of the country, he said.

The consequences of that urban-rural digital divide are evident in the fact that South Dakota's two largest communities are growing in population, while rural counties continue to lose residents, he said.

"South Dakota as a whole is attracting people, with net migration applied to Sioux Falls and to a lesser extent, Rapid City," McNab said. "But rural counties continue to lose population."

While most rural residents "make do" with the Internet connections they have, others participating in the study questioned why the state's Internet service lags behind their urban counterparts.

As one respondent told researchers, "If the Taliban can upload videos in Afghanistan, how can I not get Netflix to play in America? It is 2018, and we are smart people. We should be able to watch a movie without it buffering."

Storm sewer change order approved

Terry Herron reported that it would cost $11,185.70 to do a storm sewer inlet repair project at the southeast corner of Washington Street and Sixth Avenue West. It was not part of the summer street project. There will not be a summer chip seal project this year so there would be money available to do this project. Herron said the city will still do the crack seal project this spring. The council approved the change order. "It will help make the whole intersection look a lot better," Herron said. Councilman Jay Peterson suggested that the city try to get the snow hauled away from the work zone.

Next Tuesday the load limits will be in place where garbage pickup will be on Main Street, Sixth Street, Railroad Avenue and Broadway.

Peterson said he would like to go on record to say "thank you" to the city employees for all of their work in snow removal and for opening up the drains around town.

At the recommendation of Doug Hamilton, the council adjusted the Legion coach salary from $3,500 to $3,000.

The council hired Ashley Flihs and Erin Unzen as ticket takers. Spencer Locke and Aaron Severson will be splitting the wage for the junior teener team.

The city council then went into equalization. Doug Sombke came before the board said that his valuation rose by 10.73 percent compared to 4 percent for his surrounding neighbors. Russ from the Assessor's office will be doing a complete evaluation of his home on Friday, both inside and outside. Sombke said the biggest issue is that assessors have not been properly trained in doing valuations and it's different from county to county.

Then the city continued going through each property in town. The residential properties in town increased in valuation by about 4 percent.

To Straighten the Bent Bones of Children

Starting sometime in the middle ages, throughout many lands, there were "bonesetters" who knew about splinting, how to treat broken bones with splints made from sticks, leather and clay. They even had a guild, a medieval union of sorts, a cohesive group of workers organized to ensure quality, consistency and education. Medical schools for physicians existed at that time, but neither bonesetters nor surgeons attended those schools.

In the 1700s, Nicholas Andre', a researcher and professor of medicine at the University of Paris, formally described splinting, a technique used by bonesetters, as a method to treat bony deformities, such as clubbed feet in newborn children. He likened it to the straightening of young tree saplings. Andre' wrote a textbook on the subject entitled L'Orthopedie. The ancient Greek word orthos means free from deformity, to straighten; and the ancient Greek word paideia refers to the art of raising a child. Together they provide for the name of a present-day surgical specialty. Literally, orthopedics means to straighten the bent bones of children.

Surgical methods in the 1700s and 1800s were very immature. Anesthesia was first

Instant Replay Topic

Editor's Note: There must have been some controversial call at the end of the game that prompted this response from the SDHSAA. Apparently, from twitter accounts, there was no conference among the three officials on a controversial call at the end of the game. Here is an excerpt from the Sioux Falls Argus Leader:

RAPID CITY — The Class AA semifinals came to a controversial conclusion Friday night, with senior Luke Ronsiek hitting a shot at the buzzer to lift No. 3 O'Gorman to a 43-42 win over No. 2 Yankton.

Down one, Ronsiek received a pass from Canyon Bauer on the near wing with about 2.6 seconds remaining. Ronsiek dribbled around Rex Ryken and into the lane. He went airborne with less than a second left, pulling the ball back ever so slightly before tossing it towards the hoop.

The game clock appeared to have expired before the ball left Ronsiek's hand, but the official along the far sideline immediately motioned that the basket counted.

As the Knights began celebrating underneath the basket, Yankton coach Chris Haynes ran across the court with his arms extended, pleading with the officials. But the call had been made and with no replay or recourse available, the decision was final and the game was over.

This was the response from Dr. Daniel Swartos, SDHSAA Executive Director:

The SDHSAA is aware of the situation that occurred at the end of the Yankton/O'Gorman State AA Boys Basketball Semifinal this evening in Rapid City. NFHS rules do allow states to adopt instant replay in basketball under very limited circumstances. The SDHSAA process for rule changes involves passage by member votes at an advisory committee level, followed by a vote of the state athletic directors, and finally two readings by the SDHSAA Board of Directors. While the topic of instant replay in basketball has been previously broached in South Dakota, it has never left the advisory stage of our membership's rule change process. As such, instant replay is not currently used in SDHSAA basketball nor any of our other activities. Further, per our Constitution and By-Laws, officials decisions in any contest are by their nature necessarily regarded as final and shall not be considered as the basis for protest.

It is the intention of the SDHSAA to again examine instant replay in basketball throughout the coming year, and we will follow the wishes of our membership in regards to this topic. It will go through the same rule change process as anything else, and would be implemented if approved by a vote of the state Athletic Directors and two readings of the representative SDHSAA Board of Directors.

IN OLD BUSINESS, UT Mgr Bakeberg's Utility Report mentioned the pump at the Water Tower is still running. President Cox said Emma Burnham Library has 2 new board members, Terri Raleigh and Ashley Gunther, approved by the EBL Board. Frederick's Board approval was added to New Business. Cox and Gunther will attend a Reading Program to help establish a Summer Reading Program at the EBL for children. There was no representation from the Historical Society and no needs from the Frederick Development Corporation.

OTHER OLD BUSINESS included a new door for Community Center which will be looked at again this Spring. The Credit Card app was filled out with Chairman Campbell and Finance Officer Bruns names on it and a credit limit of $1000. The card was approved in January. A new printer may be needed in the Finance Office and 1st National Bank may have one to use.

The Emerald Ash Disease was discussed and it is known that the Disease is inevitably going to reach the Ash trees in Simmons Park. This is the reason for the 4-year contract with Bower Tree Service of Frederick to remove a certain amount of Ash Trees each year and replace with a hearty tree of yet unknown species.

Alyssa Middleton and Al Layton were acknowledged and wondered what will be done about their frozen water problem. The Board and UT Mgr Bakeberg, advised them that they had been working on the problem most of the day and found a frozen value which they have been working on to thaw out. They have purchased materials for it. Chairman Campbell explained they will run a heat wrapped line from an empty FDC apartment to Middleton's to Layton's. Following questioning by Middleton, he said if they did not have the pressure they needed, they were welcome to shower in the empty apartment.

When told it could be a month before it thawed out, Middleton wondered why it couldn't just be dug up. BM Millard explained that the city must look out for all townspeople including the taxes they pay and can't take the 1st invasive approach to address the issues. "We are doing what we can under tight constraints to resolve this issue." The Board apologized for the issue and they are working hard to get it fixed.

NOTE: If you notice your water running brown, it could be a sign your line is about to freeze! Take precautions and have water on hand.

NEW BUSINESS included; No election will be held as only one petition was taken out by Gary Schlosser for Board Member. He will receive the Oath of Office for a 3-year term in May. The Brown County Association of Towns and Townships meeting is Monday evening, March 11th, in the Brown County Courthouse basement. The Brown County Equalization meeting is also in the courthouse basement on Tuesday, March 12th at 1 PM.

Equalization Week is March 18-22 with meetings in the Frederick Community Center on Monday, March 18, at 7 PM, and Friday, March 22, at 7 PM, for grievances which need to be received by March 16th.

The Brown County Risk map showing where possible flooding could occur was available to examine from FEMA. The Maple River was not listed. A place to look for flood info is <https://www.fema.gov/floodplains-and-wildlife-conservation>.

A motion was made to approve the appointments of Terri Rawleigh and Ashley Gunther as new Emma Burnham Library Board Members. Motion was made by TM/GS. Motion Carried.

CORRESPONDENCE was about checking into a Text Alert type of messages between the citizens and Town of Frederick for warnings and notices. FO will check out pricing.

It also included "Paint SD 2019" from SD Housing Dev Authority offering an opportunity for a group of volunteers to offer the painting of local homes with SDHDA suppling paint and primer. Applications must be in by April 12th.

There was information about Floodplains and Wildlife Conservation.

The Board discussed mitigation if flooding does occur in our area. A large pump was secured during the conversation to use should we need to pump water from the Lagoon. The gauge to the Maple River is also under constant surveillance.

The 2018 Frederick Water Report from DENR was available to look at during the meeting and is also available in the Finance Office for viewing.

The April meeting will be held the second Monday of April, the 8th, instead of 1st Monday due to arrival of bills.

It was questioned if the city is looking to sell a small tractor. It may be surplus at another time.

There being no further business to discuss, the meeting was adjourned with a motion by GS/TM. Motion Carried.

Dear EarthTalk: I've heard that China and other nations have gone gangbusters with reforestation projects that are ambitious enough to have a significant impact on cutting carbon emissions. Why aren't we also doing this here in the U.S.? -- Mickie Infurcia, Hamden, CT

A recent Boston University (BU) study tracking satellite data of vegetation coverage found that the world is indeed getting greener overall, largely thanks to an ambitious reforestation program underway in China.

"China alone accounts for 25 percent of the global net increase in leaf area with only 6.6 percent of global vegetated area," says lead researcher Chi Chen of BU's Department of Earth and Environment. "This is equal to the net greening in the three largest countries, Russia, the United States and Canada, that together hold 31 percent of the global vegetated area."

China's reforestation efforts date back to the 1970s when the government started requiring every citizen over age 11 to plant at least three saplings every year to augment official government-backed reforestation projects. The result has been the planting of some 66 billion trees across some 12,000 miles of Northern China over the last few decades, with the so-called "Great Green Wall of China" expected to snake along some 2,800 continuous miles by 2050.

China isn't the only country hell-bent on reforestation. Pakistan embarked on its Billion Tree Tsunami campaign in 2014 and is well on its way of achieving its goal of restoring healthy forests to some 350,000 hectares of degraded land. Meanwhile, Australia's "20 Million Trees Program" aims to re-establish green corridors and urban forests across the country while mitigating climate impacts by facilitating the planting of 20 million trees by 2020. Another major reforestation effort with global impact is happening in Brazil, where the non-profit Conservation International is helping restore 30,000 of the hardest hit hectares across the so-called "arc of deforestation" in the Amazon rainforest as a key part of that country's Paris climate agreement goal of reforesting 12 million hectares by 2030.

Here in the U.S., our forebears chopped down practically every tree

they could until around 1920, but then we started to regain some of the lost tree cover over the next 40 years as abandoned farms reverted back to forest. Since then, we are barely net positive in forest cover as tree planting campaigns by the U.S. Forest Service and the non-profit Arbor Day Foundation have made up for losses from development and logging. That said, increased reforestation is not a major part of American efforts to meet climate mitigation targets given more practical ways we can achieve quicker overall emissions reductions.

Beyond the U.S., though, there is still lots of "low-hanging fruit" around the world in the form of other areas that would be good candidates for reforestation. The non-profit World Resources Institute (WRI) maintains the Atlas of Forest & Landscape Restoration Opportunities, which includes global overlay maps on current forest coverage, potential forest coverage, forest condition and human pressure on forest landscapes. According to WRI, upwards of two billion hectares of degraded or logged over forest lands around the world are ripe for restoration work if only we can muster the political will to make it happen.

Red Horse delivers senior meals during blizzard

Beverly McGannon posted this on her facebook page: A big high-five to the Red Horse Café. Lisa and Darren called all of the senior citizens to see if they wanted a senior meal delivered today. I would've never dreamt of asking them to in this weather. They made hamburgers french fries and ice cream and delivered to everyone who wanted it and couldn't get to the café. That's what small-town living is all about. Darren had to go through with the big drift the snow plow left out in front, over his knees to get to my door and it was probably worse other places. Thank you thank you.
