Spotlight on Groton Area Staff Name: Brandon "BJ" Clocksene Occupation: Food Service Director Length of Employment: 2016-Present

Brandon "BJ" Clocksene has been in charge of the food service sector of Groton Area High School for a total of four years, but his work in the culinary sector has humble beginnings. When BJ was a child, his grandmother would Locke and Madeline Fliehs. (Photo by Tricia Keith) BJ Clocksene often prepare copious amounts of food for his family's Christmas celebration: Turkey, ham, chicken, stuffing, and casseroles abound! He cites his Grandmother as the source of his love for cooking. After graduating from Groton Area High School in the Class of 1998, he soon pursued training at Mitchell Technical Institute. He graduated with his major in Culinary Arts. Afterwards, he returned to Groton, where he has happily resided for the majority of his life.

Mr. Clocksene's duties as Food Service Director involve ordering ingredients, planning the menu, and ensuring the preparation of the student's meals is done on time. The food service staff of Groton Area pride themselves on the effort they put into preparing meals for students, making both breakfast and lunch for both high school and elementary school students every day. As for Brandon himself, he often advises students to "Try something new whenever you can."

Editor's Note: This is a continuing series compiled by Benjamin Higgins. Higgins who is working for the Groton Independent through the Project ington Skills program.

The Minnesota Vikings finished the 2020 season with a 37-35 win against the Detroit Lions. Neither team had anything to gain with a win, but this game turned into a thriller that came down to the final minutes. The Vikings (7-9) held on for the win, and can finally close this season out and put it behind them.

Kirk Cousins had a great game, completing 28 of 40 passes for 405 yards and three touchdowns.

He was once again under pressure on most of his throws, but that was to be expected with left tackle Riley Reiff sitting this game out. Alexander Mattison was the lead back on Sunday, touching the ball 24 times for 145 yards and two touchdowns. Another backup player who wanted to put some good plays on tape before the offseason was Chad Beebe, who had one of the plays of the game right before halftime. With :11 seconds on the clock before half, Beebe caught a pass from Cousins and pinballed off two Lions defenders before showing breakaway speed on his way to a forty-yard touchdown, giving the Vikings a five point lead.

Harrison Smith hasn't been playing his best football lately, but on Sunday he led the team with nine tackles to go along with a pass breakup and a timely interception in the third guarter. Hercules Mata'afa was another player who stood out, tallying the Vikings' only sack to go along with a tackle for a loss and a QB hit. It hasn't been a good year for Mike Zimmer's defense, and this game was no different. The silver lining is that the Vikings have some young players who have a ton of potential, and when the other injured players return, the Vikings should be considerably better next season.

The player of the game was Justin Jefferson, who now has more receiving yards than any other rookie in NFL history. The young wide receiver has a very good chance to be named offensive rookie of the year, and he has already proven he's a special talent. Jefferson finishes the 2020 season with 1400 yards and seven touchdowns, and will surely be a focal point of the offense next season.

Looking ahead, we'll be keeping an eye on the playoffs, with a recap of each game that will ultimately lead us to the championship. We will also include any Vikings related news and notes, so make sure to check back next week. Skol!

Social Factors Impact Wellbeing

Some health problems are much larger than the health care system and cannot be fixed by doctors, nurses, hospitals, and the rest of the traditional health care team.

In our physician peer group sessions, my colleagues and I often share the agony we feel when sending people out of the emergency room, knowing that the patient is going right back into the conditions that contributed to their crisis in the first place. Perhaps they could not afford their insulin or have no refrigerator in which to keep it cold. Perhaps they are going home with the person who hurt them. Perhaps they don't have a home to go to and are trying to care for their wound while living on the street. These situations are real, and they exist in rural areas, small towns, and big cities alike.

I often urge my patients to get more exercise, and we brainstorm ways to overcome the barriers they face. But options are limited for the person whose neighborhood has no sidewalks or isn't safe to stroll through. We talk about good nutrition, and most patients know it's best to eat plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. But what if the only store they can reach is the convenience store which doesn't stock healthy options?

Some of my patients come to me having researched their symptoms, and we talk about how to find reliable medical information on the internet. But what happens if they don't have access to the internet? Sometimes I print out educational material, but that has no value for the patient who cannot read.

Almost everyone has stress in their lives, but for some people the stress is unremitting and severe. They deal with poverty and the attendant evils of housing and food insecurity, with limited education that restricts their options. They lack reliable transportation which keeps them from school or work or regular healthcare. They suffer from chronic diseases, racism and other forms of discrimination while separated from the support of family and community.

Research reveals that these chronic stressors have significant adverse effects on the health of not only the individual, but their descendants as well. We have a label for these stressors. They are called "social determinants" and we are increasingly aware that they play an even bigger role in a person's wellbeing than all the things that health care providers do.

Protecting and promoting the health of our patients and our communities is a sacred mission, but we need to expand our perspective beyond medicine and surgery and helping one individual at a time. Health is larger than the health care system. We each have a role to play in recognizing and reducing the impact of social determinants for the wellbeing of our entire community.

What would your community's New Year's resolution be for 2021?

Paula Jensen Vice President of Advancement

then prioritized three to five New Year's resolutions that would be worked on collaboratively throughout the year to create a thriving community? What would that look like? There is a real motivational perspective in working collaboratively toward creating the thriving rural community we want to live in. Maslow's hierarchy of needs is a motivational theory in psychology comprised of a five-tier pyramid of human needs. From the bottom of the hierarchy upwards, the needs are physiological (food and clothing), safety (job security), love and belonging needs (friendship), esteem, and self-actualization. Needs lower down in the hierarchy must be satisfied before individuals can attend to needs higher up. Recently, a colleague strategies for our future. So, imagine if every year your com-of life, broadband, medical, transportation, and workforce. These basic rural needs are essential conditions for the maintenance, growth, and well-being of our communities. People often ask me, "Why do some rural communities thrive, and others drop off the map?" My observations have revealed that working in the rural community and economic development field shared a rural hierarchy of needs. From the bottom of the thriving communities employ three motivational factors: grit, agency, and mastery.

Community Grit is defined as the passion and perseverance for long-term goals held by community residents and leaders who can envision their community thriving.

Community Agency is the capacity to overcome obstacles by navigating the system within given circumstances. Communities that display agency come together and layout strategies based on local needs. They also engage local residents, resource providers, and other stakeholders to approach solutions through innovative thinking.

Community Mastery is when residents and organizations collaboratively apply grit and agency over long periods of time to grow in amazing ways. This unique system has the capacity to move rural communities toward fully actualizing their potential.

The Community Mastery theory is a long-term strategy for community and economic development that can be achieved in three stages:

Apprentice Stage

Get connected – map out who is in your local, regional, and statewide networks, begin building relationships, then invite them into your work.

Get a vision – play to your strengths, then widen the vision to discover a niche that fits the future you want to create in your community.

Get a strategy – adapt systems of the past into a flexible view of your future that will fully actualize local potential.

Creative / Active Stage

Get Communicating – create a system that engages a multitude of voices and reaches all generations across many channels.

Get Leading – develop innovative opportunities for anyone, at any age to lead from their

Get Learning – build skills locally through training and mentorships, then practice and experiment by taking on small projects that lead toward a greater strategy.

Get Transformed - establish a system that celebrates success, learns from failure, and continually engages new people in various stages of the Community Mastery theory, while living like community and economic development is a marathon, not a sprint.

If you made it to this paragraph and are fretting about setting New Year's resolutions for your community this year because it just will not work, then show some grit by sharing this article with three other people. Have a conversation and breakdown the community mastery theory because there's always good value in trying to discover what is possible for your community.

National Gas Price Average Holds Steady for 12 Days

January 4, 2021 – The new year has started, but the national gas price average remains unchanged, holding steady at $2.25 for the last 12 days. Pump price stability at the start of the year is credited to consistent crude oil prices in late December, about $47-48/bbl, combined with low demand. U.S. gasoline demand, as recorded by the Energy Information Administration (EIA), was at the lowest level for the last week of December in 23 years (since 1998) – at 8.1 million b/d.

South Dakota Gas Prices

Today $2.22 ~ Yesterday $2.22 ~ Last week $2.21 ~ Last month $2.11 ~ Last year $2.48 "Holiday road travel was down at least 25%. With fewer people on the road, the majority of states saw little change at the pump from the last week of 2020 to the first few days of 2021," said Marilyn Buskohl, AAA spokesperson.

While the national gas price average is nine cents more than last month, January gas prices are already 33 cents cheaper than this time last year. That is the largest year-overyear difference at the beginning of January since 2015. AAA expects demand to dwindle in coming weeks and gas prices to likely be cheaper, especially if crude oil holds at the current price point.

How high or low gas prices will go in 2021 will largely depend on crude oil prices, supply and demand. AAA expects that as the vaccine becomes more widely available and states loosen travel restrictions, Americans will begin to drive more and at that point we will see an impact at the pump. At $2.17, 2020 saw the lowest annual national gas price average since 2016.

Final Rural Health Column

Dear readers, editors and publishers of our partner states,

The Community Health News Service has given you unbiased health and health care information for eight years. We have done all of this on a shoestring budget. That shoestring has now broken, and this column by Trudy Lieberman will be the last column of our service.

THINKING ABOUT HEALTH

The Picture of Health in America Is Not So Rosy

By Trudy Leiberman, Community Health News Service

For end-of-the-year columns, it's customary to recap the events of the past 12 months, usually highlighting a mix of the good and the bad. Because this year has been dominated by health, in particular COVID-19, and my beat is health, it seems fitting to reflect on where we are. Where we are is not good.

A headline in the Los Angeles Times seemed to sum up the current state of the U.S. health care system: "Bodies pile up, patient care falters as COVID-19 devastates L.A. County hospitals." In the Times' story a hospital critical care nurse says, "No one would believe this is the United States." Indeed, they would not.

A story from Wisconsin tells us that a hospital pharmacist deliberately destroyed some 500 doses of vaccine. No reason given, at least none the media have reported. This behavior, I dare say, would have been unheard of in 1947 when New York City managed to vaccinate five million people against smallpox in two weeks.

At the end of 2020, the government's goal of vaccinating 20 million people against COVID by the last day of December fell way short with only 2.7 million doses administered. In some ways that is hardly surprising, given how chaotic the whole COVID affair has been since the beginning. First, we failed to recognize how lethal the virus was; then we were slow to get testing up and running; next came problems with contact tracing because Americans were reluctant to cooperate. Lab results were delayed. Americans flouted the rules and advice to stay home, and on it went until we find our nation in a very unenviable position at the beginning of 2021.

Yet the mythology surrounding our health care system – that it is the best in the world – continues. This year has shown that America, contrary to its self-image, does not have the most effective and efficient health care system in the world. That's a bitter pill for many Americans to swallow.

At the end of December, a new study emerged in the journal JAMA Internal Medicine that further deflates America's standing. It found that wealthy, white Americans generally have better health outcomes than the average U.S. citizen but generally worse outcomes than average citizens in other higher income countries. In other words, the U.S. continues to spend gobs of money on health care but doesn't necessarily get a healthier population for its expenditures. Not a lot of bang for the buck!

Two pieces I wrote this year drove home that point for me. They showed the inadequacy of health care for too many rural Americans even in "normal" times when there's no virus lurking among us. One woman from a sparsely populated county in central Nebraska recently wrote to tell me about the lack of in-network doctors available to people who join Medicare Advantage plans. Those plans require seniors to use network physicians to get benefits. If they don't, the result is high out-of-pocket bills.

If people in those sparsely populated regions don't have doctors who pass muster with their insurance company, how many go without care?

Another piece I wrote discussed federally qualified health centers, which serve many low-income communities across the country. Doctors at one such health center in western Nebraska serve 17 low-population counties, and patients drive many miles to see a doctor. Those doctors also report that they examine more patients for dental problems than for other medical issues. That speaks to lack of access to oral health care for way too many Americans; another health problem policymakers brush off.

Although the pandemic has exposed serious flaws in America's health care arrangements, maybe, just maybe, it will spark a serious national discussion about the kind of health system we want for everyone when the postmortem on COVID-19 is done.

In the meantime, all of us will have to figure out how to get tested, get vaccinated, and stay safe without a lot of reliable information to guide us along the way. Because so much of the information from the federal government has been politicized, I turned to the website of Britain's National Health Service www.nhs.uk, which I've visited and written about several times.

It is a model of clarity and good information about COVID. For example, the advice for pregnant women and those thinking about becoming pregnant was the clearest I've seen. The website also tells visitors when it was last updated and when the next update will be.

That website shows how much better America could be.

Gray Wolf Removed from Federal Endangered Species List

PIERRE, S.D. – On January 4, 2021, the gray wolf will be delisted as a federally protected species following 45 years of protection under the Endangered Species Act. This action allows South Dakota Game, Fish and Parks (GFP) to manage wolves as a predator as defined in state law.

Under GFP's management authority, trappers, sportsmen and women, landowners and livestock producers will have the ability to harvest gray wolves across the state beginning on January 4, 2021. The same license requirements needed for coyotes are needed to harvest a wolf. These include a predator/varmint license, furbearer license or any resident or nonresident hunting license. To trap a wolf, a furbearer license is required. Landowners on their own land and youth under the age of 16 are exempt from the license requirement.

"Over the past several decades, South Dakota has had a handful of gray wolves killed on both sides of the Missouri River," said Keith Fisk, program administrator with GFP. "The department suspects the gray wolves that have been present in South Dakota are likely transient animals that have dispersed from populations east and west of the state."

To gather further information and a DNA sample, the department is requesting anyone who harvests a wolf in South Dakota notify a wildlife conservation officer within 24 hours and that the inspection and sampling by a GFP representative occur within 48 hours.

GFP does not support gray wolf expansion in South Dakota. For more information, please visit gfp.sd.gov/wolf.

The Life of Gary Heitmann

Services for Gary Heitmann, 83, of Groton will be 10:30 a.m., Thursday, January 7th at the United Methodist Church. Pastor Brandon Dunham will officiate. Inurnment will follow at a later date in the Black Hills National Cemetery, Sturgis. Services will be live streamed through GDILIVE. COM

Visitation will be held at the church on Wednesday from 5-7 p.m. with a prayer service at 7:00 p.m.

Gary passed away January 1, 2021 at his home.

Gary Royce was born on October 21, 1937 in Britton to Harry and Mary Alice (Witham) Heitmann. The oldest of 4 children, he attended rural school near Lake

City and graduated from Britton High School. Shortly after high school graduation, he went to U.S. Air Force Basic Training at Lackland AFB, TX and continued his service with 119th Fighter Wing in Fargo, ND as a reservist from 1956 - 1967 and received an honorable discharge. During this time period, Gary continued his education at SDSU where he majored in agronomy. The day following his college graduation, he eloped with the love of his life, Caralee Hagen. They were married on June 4, 1963 in Fergus Falls, MN. The couple made their first home in Ft. Yates, ND where Gary started his career with the Bureau of Indian Affairs as a soil scientist mapping soils on several reservations. Over the years, his career evolved and he was named Director of Natural Resources. His job led them over the Midwest, living in Nebraska, both North and South Dakota, Montana, and Utah. Gary spent 31 years with the BIA before his retirement in 1994. Never being one to sit idle and wanting to remain connected to agriculture, he continued working at Schuring Farms in Andover for the next 15 years. Being the senior employees at the farm, he and Bob Schuring completed many tasks that nobody else wanted to do - but they thoroughly enjoyed their time working together. Gary was an avid fan of the Minnesota Twins and the Minnesota Vikings so it goes without saying that he never gave up hope. He and his family made numerous trips to watch games in various locations across the country. Throughout his entire life, people, especially his family, always remained the most important aspect of his life. Gary was a devoted husband, father, grandfather, and friend.

Gary was a member of the United Methodist Church in Groton where he held multiple church offices over the years. He served as Groton City Councilman and was also a member of Kiwanis. He also was a driver for the Groton Transit as well as offering to drive people to Aberdeen for appointments. Gary was heavily involved for a number of years with organizing the Schliebe midget baseball tournament and tirelessly volunteered his time to the baseball program as an umpire, scorekeeper, or whatever was needed. Gary's favorite activity revolved around his sons while they were growing up and more recently his grandchildren. He so enjoyed being a proud supporter of all of their many events and attended most of them - near and far. He spent many hours sitting in the bleachers as a proud father and grandfather. Other activities that Gary enjoyed with family and friends included golfing, hunting, gardening and coffee time - four different coffee groups everyday!

Celebrating his life is his wife, Caralee of Groton, three sons, Grady (Bobbi Jo) Heitmann of Faulkton, Greg Heitmann (Angela Sandoval) of Santa Fe, New Mexico, Garrett (Sindi) Heitmann of Snoqualmie, Washington, grandchildren: Kristen (Taylor) Dykema, Kaitlin (Colby) Bunkers, Derek Heitmann, Shayna Heitmann, Estevan Sandoval, Catalina Sandoval, Antonio Heitmann, Alejandra Heitmann and one great-granddaughter Oaklee Bunkers. Gary's siblings: Gay Heitmann of Lake City, Linda Reierson of Minot, ND and David (Susan) Heitmann of Lake City.

Preceding him in death were his parents Harry and Mary Heitmann and his in-laws Ed and Betty Jean Hagen.

James Valley Telecommunications bringing fiber to Groton

Representatives from James Valley Telecommunications came before the Groton City Council Tuesday evening to talk about future plans for the cooperative. Since 2013, JVT has been installing fiber lines in other towns in the cooperative service area. This year, JVT will be installing fiber lines in the city of Groton. All of the lines will be direct bored with some 200 pedestals being installed throughout the city. James Groft, CEO of JVT, said the interduct for the project will arrive in Groton in March. There will be 55,000 feet of fiber installed. Fiber will be brought to the homes only if they need service faster than what the existing cooper line can provide. The entire project is expected to be finished by the end of 2021.

City Attorney Drew Johnson informed the JVT group that the city is currently negotiating a franchise with MIDCO, which is also planning to install fiber line throughout Groton. Johnson said that the contacts with both groups has to be identical so what is negotiated with MIDCO has to be presented to JVT as well.

Four of the six council positions will be up for election this year on the Groton City Council. Terms up are two-year terms for Jon Cutler in Ward 1, Shirley Wells in Ward 2 and Karyn Babcock in Ward 3; as well as a one-year term for Emily Kappes in Ward 2. Kappes was appointed for a one-year term.
