Weekly Vikings Roundup

-Season of Change

By Jack & Duane Kolsrud

The rumors at the end of the season proved true and the Vikings' owners end the Rick Spielman and Mike Zimmer eras after eight up and down seasons.

It looked like a promising start in 2014 after making the playoffs in three of the first six seasons but the wheels came off on the defensive side of the ball in 2020 and 2021. Mike Zimmer, known for his defensive prowess, just couldn't put it together over the past two years and the Vikings ranked near the bottom of the NFL. That along with numerous other issues that seem to be coming to light over the past week lead to his dismissal as the third-winningest coach in franchise history.

The defensive woes could be attributed to some key injuries to guys like Anthony Barr and Danielle Hunter- perennial Pro Bowl players that can control games upfront that could hide the deficiencies in the backfield. In a pass-friendly league, there is a premium on defensive backs and the Vikings were not nearly as dominant in that department as in earlier Zimmer years with Xavier Rhodes and Terrance Newman playing alongside Harrison Smith.

That put a lot of pressure on the Viking's offense to out-score their opponents this season. While in the past had you told Zimmer your team would score 25 points per game, he would have been feeling pretty good about his team's chances of making a run for the division title. As we saw all year long though, the Vikings could never maintain momentum late in games, leading the NFL in a stat your team does not want to be the best at- points given up in the final two minutes of each half. Another stat that was revealed this week was the Vikings lead the league in the most three and outs with 53. This stat is telling as it means your defense is seldom getting a break when they most need it - when the game is going the other way after the other team may have just scored.

So it was time for a change and the Wilfs are now looking for a new general manager and head coach. The early consensus is to hire an offensive-minded head coach.

The feeling is Zimmer was too much involved on the defensive side of the ball but also wanted to be a run-first offensive team. That just isn't the norm these days in the NFL. The perfect world would be a coach that manages the entire team equally and hires coordinators that are allowed to coordinate. That's easy to say but may be difficult to find in this era of analytics.

On the general manager side - Rick Spielman had his moments at finding diamonds in the rough with middle-round picks, hitting on some top-notch first-rounders but missed on several high draft picks as well.

If the team is stuck with Kirk Cousins at quarterback, then they need to hire someone that will shore up the young and up-and-coming offensive line. The missing pieces appear to be at the right guard position and a top-notch center. With the #12 pick in the draft, they may opt for Iowa center Tyler Linderbaum. The perfect scenario would be to pair him up with another Hawkeye in Brandon Scherff, a free agent All-Pro from the Washington Football Team that is hopefully interested in moving back closer to home.

The next few weeks will tell the story of the Viking future for the next 5-10 years to come. It's been a long time since a trip to the Super Bowl and the Viking loyal fan base is ready to get rewarded for their never-ending love for the purple.

It's time to brag

I'm taking a break from watching football to write about football—fantasy football, specifically. Now, I know this might be a huge bore for some of you, but this column is for real Americans. Besides, I've never written about fantasy football before. Because I never had anything to brag about. Most years, I write it off as a donation to all the sharks in my league.

I realize I'm taking a risk by publicly confessing to this possibly illegal endeavor. We used to have a lawyer in the league—the late Rep. Billy Kretschmar—so I feel a little naked approaching this column without legal representation, but I did elicit a promise once from North Dakota Attorney General Wayne Stenehjem to look the other way. But, Wayne's retiring, so let's hope his replacement is another laissez-faire Republican (whose name is easier to spell) and not one of those nosey do-gooder liberals seeking to protect me from making my considerable annual donation. Most years, anyway. By now, you've gathered that this was my year, and I'm not saying it's been a while, but if North Dakota had droughts like mine, it would be the Sahara. I got so demoralized, one year I just took a knee.

When I was riding high, I used to pick on poor Billy who often dozed through the draft until awakened to make inexplicable picks. "Hey, Billy," I said once, "Why don't you just cut us all a check and get it over with?" But dang if he didn't take the trophy home one year. We called it the North Dakota Miracle. I don't know if lightning strikes twice, but apparently, miracles do, based on my unlikely victory.

When League Manager Keith Ulmer, the Mad Genius, announced the winners by group text, someone wondered, "Who picked Tony's team for him?" A fair question considering my team historically has been where careers go to die. Pretty much everyone I've picked ended up on injured reserve, but at least none of them did a striptease on the field and quit mid-game like Antonio Brown, one of Ron D. Meidinger's unfortunate picks. Don't weep for Ron, though, he's in the money and one of those sharks I was talking about. I call him Jaws.

It got so bad, NFL players would beg me not to pick them. I used to pick players I didn't like just to spite them. I had Aaron Rodgers last year, but it took until this season for the Bender Curse to take hold in the form of a much-publicized broken toe.

My first year was awful, and it was downhill from there. I picked Barry Sanders, who, to the best of my knowledge, never scored a touchdown. My team's name is the Fumbling Disappointments. While I'm sure I've had the worst luck over the years, accompanied, let's face it, by subpar football acumen, the worst single blow anyone ever took was Josh Hoffman, who nabbed Tom Brady with the first pick the year after he threw for 50 touchdowns, only to see him go out with a season-ending knee injury in the first game. To be fair, Brady thought I'd picked him.

When the Ashley Football League met last week, Gary Ulrich, aka "Chief," because he's a Kansas City fan, was trying to figure out who finished in the basement this year. "I don't know who it is," I said, "but I could show him around." I was there so often, I had to pay rent.

As we approached the finish line with me holding a healthy lead, the Mad Genius kept trying to goad me into an early celebration like the time the Dallas Cowboys' Leon Lett spiked the ball before he got to the end zone. But I ain't stupid. I'm just bad at fantasy football. You never want to offend the Football Gods, especially when they've been merciful. "I'ma stay humble," I always replied.

Now, though, with the trophy firmly in hand, I'ma brag. Spiking the ball. Trash-talking. The whole bit. The trophy—that's what it's all about, not the tens of thousands of dollars involved. (Pennies, if Stenehjem quits early.) Jaws D. Meidinger built a special shelf for it in his entry so everyone who walked in the door would have to see it. That's why I've never set foot in his house and believe me, he and Wanda begged. I get enough humiliation in my life. Besides, the basement is cozy and has wi-fi and cable TV.

Groton City DANR Notice on Project

Groton, South Dakota
C462051-06
DATE January 19, 2022
CATEGORICAL EXCLUSION DETERMINATION FOR THE PROPOSED PROJECT WITHIN THE CITY OF GROTON, SOUTH DAKOTA

The South Dakota Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources (DANR) conducted a review of a proposal from the city of Groton for Phase 2 of a Water Distribution System Improvements project.

The city of Groton is proposing to replace the last of its remaining 6-inch asbestos pipe with PVC, loop water lines in the southern and northeastern parts of town and paint the ground water storage tank.

The city of Groton was awarded a $1,326,000 Drinking Water State Revolving Fund loan. The loan has a rate of 1.625 percent and a term of 30 years. Current residential water rates are $56.95 per month. Groton has pledged a project surcharge to repay the loan. This surcharge will be $7.85 per user per month.

Listed below are the reasons for granting a categorical exclusion:

1. The project is solely directed toward minor rehabilitation of existing facilities, functional replacement of equipment, or towards the construction of new ancillary facilities adjacent or appurtenant to existing facilities.

2. No comments requiring mitigative action were received from the South Dakota State Historic Preservation Office, South Dakota Department of Game, Fish and Parks, United States Department of Interior, United States Army Corps of Engineers, Natural Resource Conservation Service, or through the public participation process.

The proposed action does not involve any serious local objections, nor does it meet any of the criteria for not granting a categorical exclusion as specified in [Section 6.505(c) (i) through (iii) of 40 CFR Part 6, Subpart E].

The Groton Water Distribution System Improvements Phase 2 project will not affect any historical or archaeological resources. The project should have no direct or indirect adverse effects on plant life or wildlife. No other environmentally sensitive issues have been identified in the planning of this project.

The review process did not indicate that significant environmental impacts would result from the proposed project. Consequently, a preliminary decision not to prepare an EIS has been made. This action is taken on the basis of a careful review of the engineering report, environmental information documents, correspondence with responsible governmental agencies and other supporting data which are on file at the Division of Financial and Technical Assistance, Environmental Funding Program, DANR, Pierre, South Dakota, and are available for public scrutiny at the Groton city office in Groton, South Dakota.

Comments supporting or disagreeing with this decision may be submitted for consideration by DANR after publication of the Categorical Exclusion Determination. After evaluating the comments received, DANR will make a final decision.

Groton Area boys dominate all aspects of game with win over Deubrook

Groton's defense and offensive weapons proved to be much more than what Deubrook could handle as the Tigers posted a 68-42 win over the Dolphins. The game was played Saturday at the Redfield Holiday Classic. It was the lowest scoring game for Deubrook this year.

With Kaden Kurtz not feeling well, Wyatt Hearnen was the next player up and started for the Tigers and he made his presence known right off the bat. The Dolphins, with starters ranging from 6-6 to 6-0, were no match for the quickness of the Tigers. Hearnen was quick to score eight points in the first quarter on quick passes under the basket where he was left unguarded. Groton Area took a 15-12 lead after the first quarter.

Jayden Zak and Lane Tietz lit the nets on fire in the second quarter and Groton Area took a commanding 42-20 lead at half time. The Tigers made 10 of 15 field goals in the second quarter and the Dolphins had 12 turnovers in the first half. Zak made nine points in the second quarter including a three-pointer and Tietz made 13 points in the second quarter which included triple three-point shots.

The momentum geared down in the second half, but Deubrook posed no threat at all as the Tigers led, 52-31 after the third quarter.

Lane Tietz made four of eight two-pointers and four of six three-pointers and led all scorers with 22 points. He had two rebounds, four assists and four steals. Jayden Zak made four of seven two-pointers and three of seven three-pointers to add 18 points to the tally and had six rebounds, three assists and one steal. Wyatt Hearnen made seven of eight field goals and finished with 14 points, seven rebounds, one assist, three steals and one blocked shot. Jacob Zak had seven points, five rebounds, two steals and two blocked shots. Tate Larson had six points which included four of four free throws, had six rebounds, four assists and one blocked shot. Cole Simon had one point and one steal. Colby Dunker had one rebound and one steal. Logan Ringgenberg and Holden Sippel each had one rebound. Cade Larson had two assists and one steal.

Groton Area made 18 of 38 field goals for 47 percent, seven of 19 three-pointers for 37 percent, 11 of 15 free throws for 75 percent, had 30 rebounds, 10 turnovers, 14 assists, 13 steals, 13 team fouls and a season high four blocks.

Deubrook was led by Nicholas Bowne with 12 points while Jacob Jorenby had nine, Andrew Trooien seven, Mason Shaw four, Sutton Fritz three and Gavin Landmark, Landen Johnson and Parker Crooks each had two points and Dominic Lacek added a free throw. Deubrook made 16 of 45 field goals for 36 percent, six of nine free throws for 67 percent, had 19 turnovers and 17 team fouls.

Groton Area is now 8-0 on the season while Deubrook goes to 4-4.

The game was broadcast live on GDILIVE.COM, sponsored by Bary Keith at Harr Motors, Allied Climate Professionals with Kevin Nehls, the John Sieh Agency, Groton Ford and by Dacotah Bank.

The first week of the Legislative Session was typical in many ways. However, for the Appropriations Committee, we have been hard-at-work for two weeks. With the unprecedented number of dollars being showered upon the states by the federal government, as well as the state revenues which are off the charts, we have many important deliberations to make this year. We want to be responsible about the decisions we make which will likely revolve around long-term infrastructure investments and taking a look at the potential for changes to some tax rates.

On Tuesday, the Governor delivered what I consider the best State of the State address I've ever heard. She showcased many of the recent success stories of South Dakota and the people who have called this "home" for mere months to several decades. It is no secret that people have been flooding into SD to enjoy our local tourism opportunities. In so many cases when those people are here, they realize our way of life is second-to-none, and those people are choosing to relocate to SD. They embrace the freedom so many of us have enjoyed all our lives, and they say, "I want this for my family!" Additionally, the Governor was quick to point out a few of the countless success stories of lifelong South Dakotans. Clearly, we have a very good thing going for us, and that is due to the SD Governor and government honoring people's freedoms and liberties and allowing them to make decisions that are in their best interests, while so many other states and federal government bureaucrats are trying to stifle individual initiative and ingenuity.

We also heard from Chief Justice Steven Jensen with the State of the Judiciary address and from Sisseton Wahpeton Oyate Tribal Chairman Delbert Hopkins, Jr. with the State of the Tribes address. Both individuals discussed their outlook, highlighting challenges we must collectively work together to overcome.

To-date, there have been 74 House Bills and 85 Senate Bills introduced. Additionally, there have been two Joint Resolutions dropped in the hopper calling for Article V Conventions (Conventions of States) which would contemplate amendments to our US Constitution. At this point, it is premature to delve deeply into all these issues, as most of them have not even had initial committee hearings. One bill that has emerged from Senate State Affairs is SB 46, which would establish that extracurricular activities reserved for girls and women would be protected as female-only even when boys who identify as girls seek to participate. This has gotten a tremendous amount of media coverage both on the local level and the national scene. The bill passed the State Affairs Committee, 8-1, and will be heard on the Senate floor this week.

With that, I want to express my continued gratitude for the trust you have place in me to work for you! This is my 22nd year in the Legislature. After this year, I will be term-limited out of the Senate, and I am currently seeking the Republican nomination to be your next Commissioner of School and Public Lands. In the meantime, there is much work to be done on the legislative front, and I encourage you to reach out via email. My address is brock.greenfield@sdlegislature.gov.

Until next time, I wish you health and happiness and God's richest blessings for you and your family.

Dear EarthTalk: How will the homes of the future look and feel different as a result of global warming?

—A.G., Silver Spring, MD

No doubt, homes are changing dramatically as the planet warms. Recent data from the United Nations Environment Programme shows that construction and use of residential buildings accounts for 17 percent of global greenhouse gas emissions. As architects and engineers look to reduce their environmental footprint, homes are starting to change in several key ways.

In general, new construction homes are the most likely to be the most resilient to climate change. New forms of concrete that are made from recycled or waste-based material save a large share of carbon emissions associated with the production of virgin concrete. Painting the roof white or another light color can reduce air conditioning use extensively by reflecting the sun's rays and their heat back toward the sky instead of absorbing them into the building structure. The U.S. Department of Energy reports that painting your roof white or another light color enables it to reflect solar radiation and keep up to 50 degrees colder than a typical roof on a hot day.

As for winter, making sure a house's shell is tight and free of drafts is one key to efficiency, as well as the use of eco-friendly insulation in walls and roofs. Strategically placed windows can help reduce winter heating bills through so-called "passive solar" heating.

The use of integrated systems and smart home technology to link up appliances and lights and run them only when needed is another hallmark of the home of the future. Likewise, design and materials considerations will play a large role in making these new homes as energy and water efficient as possible.

The geographic distribution of housing is also changing due to global warming. Cities across the U.S. are debating proposals to build high-density housing along bus and rail lines, with the hope that easier access to public transportation will reduce vehicle emissions. Inside, the homes of the future are likely to be chock full of eco-friendly innovations to reduce energy usage, from space age insulation materials to hyper-efficient electric appliances and lights that turn on and off as needed.

Finally, some places are taking an entirely new approach to housing. The Netherlands, a nation at extremely high risk of flooding, is pioneering floating homes, which are anchored tightly to the shore but can rise and fall with the tide. Unlike houseboats, the Dutch floating homes are connected to their local electricity and sewage systems and are stabilized in the water with a concrete hull, according to YaleEnvironment360. Though they function essentially the same as any other house, their ability to ride out a flood will protect them from damage long into the future. As seas rise and coastal communities around the world lose their land to the water, the Netherlands' floating houses could be harbingers of what the homes of the future will look like.

The homes of the future will be built to use a lot less energy and withstand harsher, more extreme weather events thanks to global warming. Credit: Karin S, Pexels.com.

The People at your Table

One of my favorite parables describes the difference between heaven and hell. In both places, hungry people sit at tables laden with delicious food. In hell, people suffer and starve because they cannot eat with the long utensils provided. In heaven, people are happy and thrive because they use the utensils to feed each other.

Many cultures and religions have some variation of this story. It illustrates a universal truth: we depend on each other. The current pandemic has starkly illustrated this interdependency, and it does not sit comfortably with our American culture of self-reliance and rugged individualism.

As a physician, I depend on nurses, techs, therapists, and pharmacists. I depend on hospitalists to care for patients too sick to stay home. Hospitalists depend on intensivists to care for the sickest. Doctors depend on nurses providing hands-on care at the bedside, respiratory therapists adjusting ventilators, technicians operating machines which substitute for failing organs. And we all rely on those who sterilize equipment, launder sheets, clean rooms, repair machines, and prepare food.

Two years into the Covid 19 pandemic, those of us who remain in healthcare are tired. We have enough beds, and ventilators, and protective equipment, but the human infrastructure is struggling to keep up.

Unfortunately, we cannot simply hire more people. Becoming a physician requires 11-plus years of higher education. Most care team members have at least two years of specialized schooling which is only the beginning; learning is an ongoing process. Health systems may accelerate some of the administrative hurdles to get more people to the bedside, but we cannot accelerate the time it takes to know what to do there.

The upcoming tsunami of Omicron Covid patients threatens to swamp our health care systems. Not only are more people in need, but their needs are far more intense. In addition to Covid patients, people with other illnesses and victims of accidents still need health care services. As my colleagues and I anticipate the coming surge, we wonder how we will meet it. Who will die that with more support, might have lived?

Like the people in the parable, we need each other. Those who are eligible, please get your Covid shots and boosters. Vaccinated people are less likely to need a hospital bed, and less likely to carry the virus to someone more vulnerable. Get your flu shot. Influenza infections are skyrocketing, too. Wear a high-quality mask in public, to protect yourself and others and avoid spending long periods of time in crowds.

We all depend on each other to stay safe. Like those diners in heaven, please use the available tools and do your part for the person across the table.
